Falco and Flint were found in a resident's back yard nearly starving to death. They were four or five weeks old, just barely weaned, and appeared to be orphaned. They obviously weren't surviving well on their own—as is sadly the case for most kittens in this all too common situation.

The resident was feeding them Costco rotisserie chicken and cow's milk to keep them alive, but she knew that wasn't good for them long term. So she called Ohlone Humane Society for help.

Luckily, we were able to make room for them with one of our volunteer fosters, who nursed them to full health and full bellies! They were adopted a few months later. Unfortunately, the boys were deemed a little too rambunctious (they were kittens after all!) and were returned. It was an unfortunate situation, but we happily took them back.

Because when we commit to a cat, we commit to finding them their forever home — however long it takes. On average that means four to five months, but it can take as long as two years.

That's where you come in. Our campaign to provide a safe space for rescued kittens ends in just two days. Your gift ensures we have enough food, litter, microchips, medical supplies, and toys to keep them happy and healthy until they can be adopted.

Falco and Flint are flourishing in their new home. I can't bear to think about what might have happened to them if we hadn't been able to provide a place for them to recover and grow.

Won't you help us give that same opportunity to the rest of our rescues this kitten season?

P.S. With so many orphaned and injured kittens, it's vitally important we're fully prepared to help them. Just $10 can provide wet food for a litter of kittens for a day, so your gift of $25, $50 or more will go further than you may have imagined.
